“ At a loss for words is how I've felt until today. Today I woke up thinking of not the sadness of this occasion but of the happiness that we have shared. I hear your laugh, I see your smile, I hear your voice and I know your heart. You were always so positive, so nice, so giving and so easy to be around. There will be some confusion in Heaven to whomever is in charge of issuing wings, because you were already an Angel.

I am praying for Jourdan and his family. Chrissy had a beautiful smile and loved her shoes. She would look at you with those eyes and flash that smile. Stay with God and he will stay with you. When times get hard just remember the things she instilled in you and keep God first. Your mother was really proud of you.
